

Suspected sabotage of raw water pumps – Drinking water on Gotland unaffected

Over the weekend, an irregularity was detected at one of Region Gotland's water treatment facilities. The alarm system indicated that an impact had occurred at a raw water pump.

Operational technicians investigated the site and found that someone had broken open a cabinet and cut the power to the pump. The damage was repaired over the weekend, and the pump is now back in operation.

- "We can see that human interference caused the damage," says Patrik Johansson, Unit Manager, Water and Wastewater Department. It is important for all Gotland residents to know that the drinking water has not been affected.

Region Gotland continuously works with security as part of its daily operations. The drinking water system triggered an alarm, and Region Gotland's operational technicians reported the incident to the police as per routine.

Region Gotland is cooperating with the police and refers to the ongoing police investigation.
